SIGNING FOR THE FUTURE

A CELEBRATION OF TWO NEW CLASSES OF ENDOWMENT BOOK OF LIFE SIGNERS

On Sunday, November 3, more than 120 community members gathered with us at Congregation Shaarey Zedek for our Endowment Book of Life (EBOL) Signers Brunch honouring signers from 2023 and 2024.

The event honoured ten individuals: Alisa Abrams, Rabbi Allan Finkel, Dr. Sharon Goszer-Tritt, Dr. Steven Tritt, Brenda Honigman, Ellie Kives, Marlene Reiss, Perry Rose, Saul Feldman, and David Wilder. Each honouree, some signing for themselves, and some with loved ones signing on their behalf, chose to make a commitment to the future of Winnipeg's Jewish Community.

"We have three children in our home; they are the next wave of Jewish community members. Who will help maintain strength and vibrancy for them and their peers?" asked John Diamond, JFM CEO, to the guests as he shared why he had chosen to become an EBOL Signer as part of a previous signing class. "We need to continue putting future generations in a similar, positive position to what we find ourselves in now."

His message was one of appreciation for previous generations and hope for future ones, emphasizing that the onus of cultivating forward-thinking community members who will carry the torch in the years to come falls to himself and his peers.

"Our community will keep growing, it will keep changing, and it will keep being what Jewish people in Winnipeg need," he said.

Rabbi Allan Finkel was among the 2024 signer class and shared some words with his fellow signers and attendees.

Rabbi Finkel's story was deeply personal and outlined the importance of the program in his eyes.

"Three weeks ago, I had a stark reminder of why I had decided to set up a legacy gift in my will. I had been asked by JCFS to speak at a lunch at the Gwen Secter Centre for their Holocaust Survivor Group" he explained.

He shared the experience of looking out at those he spoke to that day and seeing fewer tables with fewer familiar faces and the realization set in that the Holocaust is now almost 80 years in the past. As time passes, we lose more of these survivors and, with them, their stories.

"After my mom's passing, we created the Carmela Shragge Finkel Holocaust Education Endowment Fund at the Jewish Foundation of Manitoba, with its proceeds directed towards the Jewish Heritage Centre for their ongoing use," he explained. As one of her children, it became natural and easy for me to rewrite my will and to create a legacy gift to this Fund that will be administered by the Jewish Foundation of Manitoba far beyond my passing."

One of the beautiful things about the Endowment Book of Life program is the uniqueness of each individual's or family's story and the factors that triggered their participation.

Rabbi Finkel, his fellow honorees, and the more than 800 community members who signed before them decided to leave a gift to the Foundation as a step in their life's journey. Though exceedingly different, each journey converges at the same place: maintaining our Jewish community now and for future generations.

"Standing on the shoulders of those who came before us is a crucial aspect of the life we all enjoy today," says Diamond. "It is our job to ensure that our children and grandchildren have an even greater support system than we've benefited from."

This is the link that connects all signers. Reading their stories inscribed in the Book of Life, we repeatedly see that community members have benefited from those before them, such as parents, grandparents, or even those who remain anonymous.

The torch lit by the role models and forward thinkers in their lives is now passed to them, and by committing to future generations, they are ensuring it remains that way for those to come.

HEALTH, WELLNESS AND SUPPORT

A JFM GRANT HELPS BRING THE RADY JCC TO THE SIMKIN CENTRE

Throughout the year, Rady on the Road brings instructors, lecturers, and musicians into the Saul & Claribel Simkin Centre to lead programming for the residents and staff.

"We've always had a strong feeling that just because our residents are living at Simkin Centre, it doesn't mean they shouldn't be a part of the community," says Laurie Cerqueti, CEO of the Simkin Centre. "How can we bring the community to them?"

Working alongside the Rady JCC and with the support of a Jewish Community Impact Grant from the JFM, they devised a program to bring the Rady JCC to the Simkin Centre, to benefit the residents, their families, and staff.

"One of the best aspects of the program is the sense of choice it provides our residents," explains Heather Blackman, Manager of Resident Experience. "They can enjoy so many different activities now. Some even joke that there are too many to choose from."

The programming is diverse and engaging, from high-calibre musical performances curated by Karla Berbrayer to speakers on topics as wide-ranging as the history of chocolate or Victorian women's lives.

"Attendance at these programs has been terrific. Everyone comes to the music programs, and often it ends up being standing-room only," says Blackman.

The program benefits more than just the residents. Simkin Centre staff had been asking for more health and wellness support, and through Rady on the Road, they can provide that via fitness programming for residents and staff.

"Chair yoga is a huge hit, and so is staff Zumba," says Blackman. It has gotten to the point where some residents have started to come to watch the classes just to be a part of it." The program brings so much joy and a great sense of community and choice."

She explains that the fitness programs, in addition to their physical benefits, connect the residents, staff, families, and anyone who joins.

"This initiative wouldn't be possible without grant support from the Jewish Foundation," says Cerqueti. "We're incredibly lucky to have the JFM. Their support allows us to offer programming that brings joy, community, and choice to everyone here. Without them, this wouldn't be possible."

Please turn to the back page of this newsletter to see a complete list of Community Impact Grants approved in the fall of 2024.

How does it work? GRANTS EDITION

The JFM awards numerous committee-advised grants to charitable organizations throughout Manitoba each year.

Here are a few notes about how we help turn the needs and aspirations of our province's charities into reality:

WHAT TYPES OF GRANTS DOES THE JFM PROVIDE?

We provide six types of grants, each serving different pockets of our community. Each grant type has one or two distinct application windows, during which Manitoba registered charities may apply.

Women's Endowment Fund Grants

Twice a year, Spring and Fall

Jewish Community Impact Grants

Twice a year, Summer and Winter

Community Impact Grants

Summer

Seniors' Transportation Grants

Summer

Judaic Studies and Cultural Programming Grants

Winter

Campership Grants

Winter

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

Grants can be awarded to any registered charity in Manitoba.

Grants are awarded to Jewish community organizations as well as General community organizations.

All projects must benefit the Manitoba community, and general community organizations must complete any outstanding grant in full before applying for their next grant.

HOW ARE GRANTS DECIDED?

All grants are determined based on a collaborative review process with multiple levels of evaluation. To begin, our volunteer Grants Committee members review each application and assess the merit of the requests. Based on their assessments, the committee creates a recommendation which is then submitted to the Board of Directors for approval.

LOOKING AHEAD

This winter, we are transitioning to a new application portal for all Grant and Scholarship applications. The new portal will bring welcome upgrades to the ease and efficiency of the application process. More details about the process will be available in the coming months.

For more information about our Granting process, please contact Marla Aronovitch, Director of Operations & Grants, by email at maronovitch@jewishfoundation.org or by telephone at 204.202.7446.

BETTER CALL SAUL

A GLIMPSE INTO THE LIFE OF SAUL FELDMAN THROUGH THE EYES OF FRIENDS

This year, the JFM received news that it was the beneficiary of a $2.4 million bequest, one of the most significant individual gifts ever made by a single person to the Foundation. The donation was from the Estate of Saul Feldman, a person who, until that moment, had not previously collaborated with the Jewish Foundation.

This unbelievably generous and unique contribution to Manitoba's Jewish community endowment begged the question: Who was Saul Feldman?

"Saul was my dad's best friend," says Moshe Selchen, the son of Zalman Selchen.

This November, Moshe signed the Foundation's Endowment Book of Life in honour and on behalf of his father's best friend, Saul.

"They did all sorts of things together and were friends from Junior High School until my dad died."

Moshe explains that Saul and Zalman's friendship grew beyond school; the two were avid cyclists, frequently riding from Winnipeg to Winnipeg Beach. They worked together on the Alaskan Highway, and eventually both chose to pursue engineering, Saul in Manitoba and Zalman at McGill University.

"Saul kept to himself for the most part," says Selchen. "He had a few friends, but not many, and none closer than my father."

In speaking with Moshe, a common thread ran through everything he said of Saul Feldman. Regarding his family, the Selchens, or colleagues at Winnipeg Hydro, he was a "take care of people kind of person."

"My father was useless with his hands," says Selchen. "But Saul could do everything. We should have coined the term 'Better Call Saul' back in those days because if anything needed fixing, Saul would be at our house to take care of it."

In his mid-fifties, Zalman had a stroke, which left his right side paralyzed. Of course, Saul was a constant by his side and was so without fail until Zalman passed over 20 years later.

"Every Sunday, while my father still could, Uncle Saul would come to pick him up for a walk," says Selchen. There aren't words to express how important these times were for Zalman and Saul.

Saul's mother lived into her nineties, 30 years after her husband passed away, and for all of those years, Saul took care of her. He also had two brothers, one of whom lived with schizophrenia, who Saul looked after as well, with his other brother living in Toronto.

After a coronary scare of his own, Saul became a founding member of the Winnipeg Cardiac Reh-Fit, where he, in turn, devoted considerable time and energy for many years.

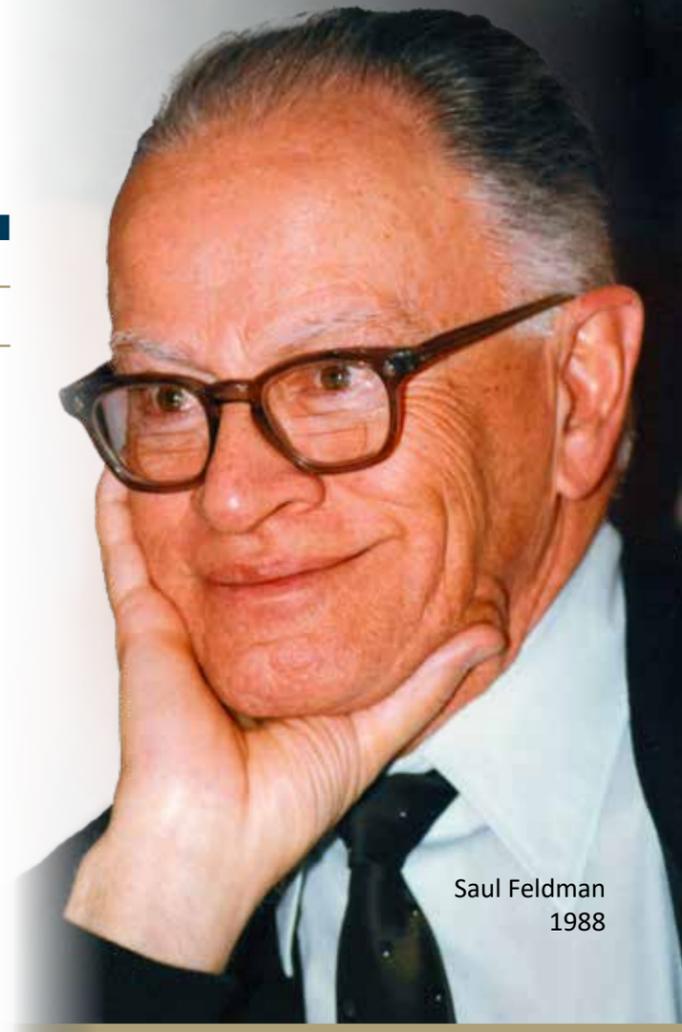

Eventually, Saul moved into the Shaftsbury Park Retirement Residence.

"When he moved there, he was friendly with the people he met," says Selchen. "But for the most part, he kept quietly to himself. His only real visitors were my mother and our family. He was happy with it that way."

Before passing away, Saul asked Moshe to be the executor of his will, and by doing so, Selchen was led to the JFM, the estate's beneficiary.

In speaking with the JFM, Selchen was made aware of the Endowment Book of Life program and thought it would be a terrific way to honour Saul's story and memory. The program sees community members leave planned gifts to the Foundation and thanks those who commit by inscribing their family's story in the Book of Life.

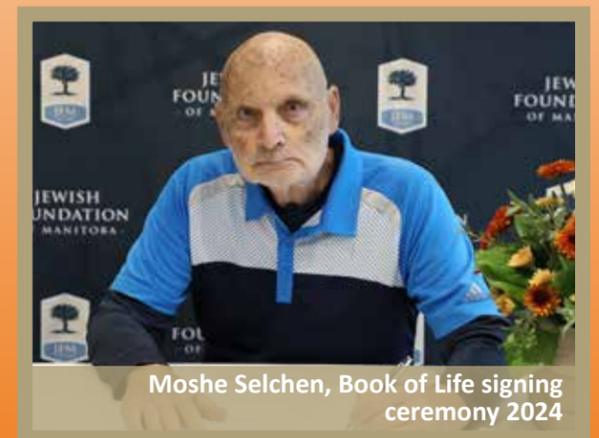

The following is taken from Saul Feldman's Book of Life Story, which describes who Saul was and what may have led to his leaving his estate to the JFM:

Saul Feldman

Saul saw [The Foundation] as the lifeblood of the Jewish community. He knew his gift would benefit many organizations and individuals in Winnipeg and possibly beyond. That desire to help others was so much a part of who Saul Feldman was in his lifetime, and it continued after his death in March 2023.

Maimonides, the greatest codifier of Jewish law and ethics, described eight levels of mitzvah, tzedakah/charity. When Saul left his estate to the Jewish Foundation of Manitoba, he achieved the second highest level of tzedakah- giving without knowing to whom one gives and without the recipient knowing from whom he received. What a fitting final act from Saul Feldman after a lifetime of selfless generosity.

KEEPING SENIORS CONNECTED

CARING FOR THOSE WHO CARED FOR US: VITAL SERVICES THAT NEED OUR SUPPORT

The JFM's Seniors' Transportation Initiative, financed largely by the Daniel Tallman Family Fund, seeks to ease stress for seniors in the community in their day-to-day lives and help them maintain their engagement with the community.

The JFM receives several grant applications for the Seniors' Transportation Grants each year. In recent years, however, requests have continued to increase as the burdens on these community members grow.

The most recent Seniors' Transportation Grants cycle saw increased requests from the organizations that typically apply and an application from one organization that had returned after several years.

"This is a need that we are seeing continue to grow with each granting cycle," explains John Diamond, CEO. "Unfortunately, the reality is that we only have a certain amount of available grants for this cause. The need grows, but the endowment has not grown with it."

After reviewing the applications, the grants committee recommended a distribution ratio based on the sizes of each request. Because of the increased need from the community, without the increase in available funds, each organization only received about half of their request for the following projects:

Gwen Secter Creating Living Centre

Their transportation program provides accessible door-to-door transportation to programs at the Centre, outings, and medical appointments.

Shalom Residences

Holistic support is provided for adults with intellectual disabilities living in Winnipeg. More than half of the residents they support are seniors and require specialized transportation to ensure they are experiencing life to the fullest.

Congregation Shaarey Zedek

Transportation to programs for seniors, connecting older adults to ritual, educational, and cultural experiences that are impactful in reducing isolation and increasing socialization.

Jewish Child and Family Service

Three different programs that allow for independent travel for seniors regardless of economic status, improving social isolation and reducing reliance on caregivers.

Saul and Claribel Simkin Centre

Providing accessible and affordable transportation for outings and community events, ensuring that residents can take part in activities outside the Centre regardless of their financial situation.

Maintaining an active and engaged lifestyle is critical to a person's well-being, and these connections to the community provide that.

If you would like to contribute to the Seniors' Transportation initiative, please visit www.jewishfoundation.org or contact Laurel Hogan, Donor Development Officer, at the Foundation office by telephone at 204.202.7438 or toll-free from the US/Canada at 1.855.284.1918 or by email at lhogan@jewishfoundation.org.

TRANSPORTATION INITIATIVE

AN UNMATCHED GIVING SPIRIT

THE RESULTS OF THE MILLION DOLLAR MATCH ARE IN, AND YOU HAVE DONE IT AGAIN – THANK YOU!

The generosity of Jewish communities worldwide can never be overstated. Here in Manitoba, that giving spirit is a cut above the rest.

To recognize that spirit, this past April, the JFM launched a new limited-time initiative called the Million Dollar Match. A program to pay homage to the people who have built and sustained the Foundation and, in turn, our communities' vital organizations over the past 60 years.

The Million Dollar Match created an exciting opportunity for new and returning donors. We are delighted to report that it was a resounding success, thanks to you and all the like-minded individuals the program initially sought to recognize.

The initiative, which provided matching monies up to $1 million, once again proved how community-focused our donors are, as all matching funds were spoken for in just over five months.

"Our community members saw this opportunity and quickly took advantage," says John Diamond, CEO. "The generosity of our neighbours was on full display throughout the initiative, as it has been for 60 years, and because of them, our Foundation has become even stronger. We are so thankful for all they've done."

During the program's run, April 1, 2024 – September 13, 2024, nearly 800 donors took advantage of the initiative and made gifts to the JFM. Of those donors, almost 200 were new donors to the Foundation.

"One of the biggest benefits we saw come out of the match was the opportunity it gave us to meet with new donors, strengthen the relationships we have with current donors, and in many cases, re-connect with donors we had not seen make gifts for several years," says Diamond.

To those who participated, your accomplishments allow us to distribute more resources to the programs in our community that warm so many hearts.

In the same timeframe, the amount of new funds opened by donors nearly doubled compared to previous years. As time passes, engagement between the JFM and the next generation of donors will ensure the community's strength in the future. Also, thanks to your generosity, the amount of money gifted doubled from where it was in 2023, as did the average individual gift size.

"These terrific results once again prove our community's strength will continue for generations," says Diamond. "Thank you again to all those who made the Million Dollar Match such a terrific success."
